Don't Date Someone Who Took the mRNA Jab... That's Not Shallow, It's Survival

Your Genetic Future is Now at Stake

Some choices in life are matters of taste. Others are matters of survival. Who you choose to date, marry, and build a family with is the single most consequential biological decision you will ever make -- because it determines the genetic future of your children. That's why many informed people won't date someone who took the mRNA jab. That's not shallow, it's discernment.

We are living through the largest uncontrolled gene-therapy experiment in human history. The mRNA injections were rushed to market without long-term safety testing, driven by pharmaceutical profit and regulatory capture. [1] The long-term consequences remain unknown and potentially extremely risk for genetic integrity and reproduction.

Why I Draw the Line at mRNA

Every intimate relationship is a potential bloodline merger. And when one half of that merger carries experimental mRNA instructions that were never tested for generational safety, the verdict writes itself: this is not a romance; it's a roll of the dice.

The science is no longer hidden. Scientists at Lund University discovered that mRNA from the Pfizer shot can be reverse-transcribed into DNA in human liver cells. [2] Biodistribution studies show mRNA complexes travel throughout the body, entering cell nuclei and causing chromosomal alterations in liver cells. [3] This is not immunity. This is genetic modification (gene therapy). And when germ cells are exposed to these synthetic instructions, the damage does not stop with the person who volunteered -- it becomes a family inheritance.

Refusing to date the injected is not hate. It is self-respect. It is the only sane response to a technology that turns human beings into genetically modified spike protein factories. [4]

Unjected Is Building the Community the Media Laughs At

When Shelby Hosanna launched Unjected.com as a dating, friendship, and community platform for the unvaccinated, the corporate media smirked. Let them laugh. That platform has already produced dozens of marriages and a generation of children born free of the system -- without a single synthetic spike protein or altered gene in their lineage. These are not lonely outliers; they are the leading edge of a demographic revolution that Shelby calls the "RE-population movement."

This is not a lonely outlier movement. This is a survival strategy. People around the world are choosing reproductive partners based on unvaccinated status as a deliberate strategy to ensure the viability of future generations. International unvaccinated blood banks now exist, with high demand for such blood in transfusions and elective surgeries. [5] In one tragic case, a child named Will died after receiving vaccinated blood during an elective surgical procedure, even though his parents had specifically requested unvaccinated blood. [5]

These are not isolated anecdotes. They are early warnings written in real human suffering. Meanwhile, a growing body of peer-reviewed research shows that unvaccinated children are healthier than vaccinated children. [6] The unjected are not missing out on anything the mainstream has to offer -- they are refusing a transaction that leaves them worse off. They are the control group for humanity, choosing partners who share the same conviction to stay pure, sovereign, and unmodified.

The Science We Are Told to Ignore Is the Science That Decides Everything

The mainstream narrative insists these injections are safe and that the spike protein stays put near the injection site. Yet researchers from Italy and the United Kingdom found that spike proteins from COVID vaccines persist in recipients' bodies for at least six months post-injection. [7] Meanwhile, Dr. Sherri Tenpenny has documented how the amino acid sequence of the Pfizer spike protein can lead to mutation and altered function of the TDP-43 protein, driving frontotemporal lobe degeneration and a cluster of chronic degenerative neurological diseases. [8] This is what the FDA and CDC would rather you never learn, and their injection concoctions literally damage your brain, making it more difficult for you to learn or process anything at all.

When mRNA converts into DNA and integrates into human genetic code (which has already been proven to occur under certain conditions), we become what researchers themselves call programmable life forms. [9] Add in the mounting evidence of vaccine shedding -- over 1,500 reports from individuals describing illness after exposure to the recently vaccinated [10] -- and the risk equation changes entirely. The vaccinated are not just modified themselves; they are now sources of exposure for everyone around them.

Then there is the question of germ cells. If mRNA accumulates in the ovaries, as biodistribution studies suggest, the potential for transgenerational harm is not theoretical. [3] Mixing your genetics with an injected person means potentially passing synthetic instructions to children who never consented to them. That's a roll of the dice I refuse to take.

The Spiritual and Sovereign Stakes

DNA is the sacred blueprint of life -- the code through which the divine soul enters the physical world. When a human being is injected with synthetic genetic instructions that sometimes convert into DNA and integrate into their genome, that person crosses a line no previous generation ever crossed. [9] They become, in the words of researcher Elana Freeland, "more cyborg than human" -- a genetically modified being whose code is no longer purely their own. [11]

And here is the part they never tell you: mRNA does not just modify you. It makes you corporate property. From the very beginning, analysts warned that "a person's DNA will literally become a unique cell line that can be patented by corporations. Human cell lines will become patentable property owned by biotech companies once injected. This represents the ultimate form of human slavery." [4]

Those who reject the jabbed are saying they will not voluntarily merge their bloodline with those who have been turned into property.

Choose Life, Choose Pure Blood, Choose the Future

If we want grandchildren with intact genetics, we have to be intentional about who we date, marry, and build families with. That means asking the hard question early -- did you take the jab? -- and being willing to walk away when the answer is yes. Not out of cruelty, but out of commitment to the generations who will inherit what we choose.

We already know that unvaccinated children are healthier than vaccinated children. [6] The unjected community is building a parallel world of dating, marriage, and family formation -- connecting the sovereign, the pure, and the brave before the window closes.

Choosing to reject the jabbed as a potential mate is the most pro-life, pro-family, pro-future decision an informed human being can make.
